Day 2- 17 December - Set Sail (B,L,D)

Today, whilst we enjoy a fresh cup of tea / coffee and snacks, we will sail down to Majuli, one of the world's largest river islands.

A microcosm of Assamese culture, Majuli represents rural idyll in Assam. A stronghold of the peaceful religion of neo-Vaishnavism, the elegant island satras — some for celibate monks, some for families — showcase a unique way of life where the faithful live simply, offering worship through gayan-bayan (songs and musical instruments) and readings.

We will visit a monastery at Auniati with an eclectic museum, and then enjoy a Sattriya performance by the ‘dancing monks’ at Kamalabari monastery. Later, return to the vessel and start sailing downstream before mooring for the day.

Majuli River Island-

Majuli is rich in culture, treasured for its centuries-old neo-Vaishnavite monasteries, known to stage dramas and make the Assamese folk theatre masks of bamboo and clay. Brahmaputra river cruises often stop at the island for village walks and birdwatching. In mid-November, people visit Majuli for raas leela performances over three days.

The island covers an area of 880 sq km, ranging between 10-15km in width—it is estimated that about a third of its area has been eroded by the Brahmaputra in the last 40 years. Majuli is home to 1.68 lakh people, most of whom belong to the Mishing tribe, and also the Deori and Sonowal Kachri tribes. The fertile soil yields many varieties of rice, some of which are unique to the island. Majuli is also home to the acclaimed “ Forest Man of India ”, Jadav Payeng who single handedly planted a forest on a neighbouring eroding island over 40 years to prevent it from further erosion.

Day 3- 18 December – Sailing down the Brahmaputra (B,L,D)

Cruise in the morning with an optimistic chance of spotting endangered Gangetic dolphins. Late morning we shall take time to pause and walk through a bankside village, getting an insight into the life of rural Assam.

Riverine village lifestyle of Assam

There is time to pause and visit a riverside village, with its lush green fields of vegetables and corn. Your accompanying guide and accompanying naturalist will brief you as you observe the simple riverine lifestyle of locals in Assam on foot.

Tonight, we will enjoy a bonfire and BBQ on a deserted sand bank of the Brahmaputra River.

Mising (Miri) Tribe - The indigenous riverine tribe of Assam

North – East India is a land of conglomeration of multiple ethnic groups. Among the eight sisters of north – east , Assam is significant where around seventeen tribes reside. Their tradition , culture, dress, language, food habits and unique way of life enriches Assamese society and culture. Next to the Bodo tribe , the Mising formerly referred to as Miri is considered as the second largest ethnic group of Assam. They belong to the Indo - Mongoloid group. Basically they are a riverine tribe. Their marriage system is typical enough. Generally there are different ways that the Mising get married. The traditional religious beliefs of the Mising are animistic in nature. The people of Mising consider themselves to be the descendents of donyi polo. Significantly all rites are performed by the Mibu. But in due course of time many rites and rituals have already been lost from society. Ali – Aye- Ligang and Po:rag are the chief traditional festivals observed by the Mising. The Notable contribution of the Mising tribe towards building a strong democracy is a remarkable one. In this paper an attempt has been made to understand the socio-cultural life of the Mising tribe of Assam.

Day 4- 19 December – Sailing downstream to Viswanath (B,L,D)

Today enjoy a full day of cruise downstream to Viswanath passing through Dhansiri Mukh. Time permitting we shall visit another riverside village before further continuing downstream with Kaziranga National Park on the left bank. Wild elephants may sometimes be spotted and, once, memorably, even a tiger straight from the ship.

Day 5- 20 December – Sailing towards Silghat; Disembark (B, D)

During breakfast cruise down to Silghat.

On arrival, we will disembark and bid adieu to the ABN Sukhapa. From here, we will drive for 4 ½ hours to Guwahati. Lunch will be enroute or in Guwahati (cost not included)

In Guwahati, you will be booked at the Hotel Radisson Blu or similar for a stay of 1 night.
